How To Use Facetime On Android Hero (Image credit: Andrew Myrick / Android Central) Let's face it, living in the Android world is fantastic. Android users have many options when choosing the devices and software customizations that truly make our devices personal and unique. We often get these features years before other platforms do, if they ever do at all. However, one area that has been a pain point has been messaging and video chatting with our Apple-loving friends. Even though there are loads of good alternative apps, these folks still tend to prefer using iMessage and FaceTime. Well, the good news is, we won't be left off of those FaceTime calls any longer. So let's jump in and learn how to use FaceTime on an Android phone. Source: Andrew Myrick / Android Central (Image credit: Source: Andrew Myrick / Android Central) Now, this option is relatively new, having been released by Apple with its iOS 15 update in the fall of 2021, but it works on any of the best Android phones, budget devices, and even Windows PCs. Your Apple friends will have to initiate a video call, but your part as the recipient is pretty easy. Tap on the FaceTime link to join the call. Type in your name (or a fun nickname). Tap Continue. Grant any necessary permissions to use your device's microphone and/or camera. Source: Android Central/Tap Join. Wait for the person who sent the invitation to let you in on the call. Enjoy your video call. Tap Leave when you're ready to hang up. Source: Android Central/That's all there is to it, really — you just accept the link and join the call. While you're on the call, you will have access to onscreen controls for things like muting and unmuting your phone's microphone, turning your camera on and off, using full-screen mode, or switching from your selfie cam to the front-facing camera. You can even turn on grid layout to see all the participants at once, much like on other video chatting services like Zoom or Google Meet. When we first asked our readers if they were excited about the idea of FaceTime coming to Android, we received a rather tepid response. Granted, this implementation isn't quite the same as having a dedicated FaceTime app for Android. It's a good workaround for now. The more we can bring Android and iOS fans and friends together, the better off we all are! Got an Android or Windows device? With FaceTime links in iOS 15 and macOS Monterey, anyone can join a FaceTime call from their web browser. An Android or Windows device A strong Wi-Fi or cellular internet connection. The latest version of Google Chrome or Microsoft Edge. If you receive a link to a FaceTime call, open the link. Enter your name, then select Continue. You might need to allow FaceTime to use your microphone and camera. Select Join. Then wait for the call's host to let you in. Select Leave to leave the call. When you're in a FaceTime call on the web, you can do many of the things you can do in the FaceTime app. SharePlay and screen sharing aren't available in FaceTime on the web. Use the Microphone button to mute your mic or turn it back on. Use the Camera button to turn your camera on or off. If you see the Full-Screen button, use it to make your FaceTime call take up the whole screen. If you see the Flip Camera button, use it to switch to your front or rear-facing camera. You can see people in your Group FaceTime calls in tiles arranged in a grid. The speaker's tile highlights automatically, so it's easy to know who's speaking. Select the Participant List and Settings Menu button. Select the Grid Layout button. To turn Grid Layout off, select it again. FaceTime is a reliable way to video chat between iPhone, iPad, and Mac users. If you have one of these Apple devices, it's easy to take FaceTime for granted. Unfortunately, there's no way for Android users to download the FaceTime app or start their own FaceTime calls. But with the release of iOS 15, iPadOS 15, and macOS 12 Monterey, anyone can join a FaceTime call — even from an Android phone. Here's how to send a FaceTime invite from an Apple device, and then how to join that FaceTime call on your Android phone or Windows PC. How to join a FaceTime call on an Android or PC. Android and Windows users still can't start FaceTime calls. But as long as you have Google Chrome or Microsoft Edge, you can join calls that others make. Quick tip: Google Chrome comes pre-installed on most Android phones, and Microsoft Edge comes pre-installed on all Windows PCs. First, someone with an Apple device needs to start the FaceTime call. To do this, they'll need: 1. Have the Apple user open the FaceTime app on their device and select Create Link at the top of the app. On an Apple device, select "Create Link" at the top of the FaceTime app. William Antonelli/Insider 2. In the pop-up, the Apple user then needs to select how they'd like to share the link — via Messages, Mail, Snapchat, AirDrop, or another app. It doesn't matter which method you use, the Android or PC user just needs to have the link. 3. Once the Android or Windows user receives the link to facetime.apple.com, they need to open it in Google Chrome or Microsoft Edge. 4. Have the Android or Windows user enter their name and hit Continue. Enter your name and tap "Continue." William Antonelli/Insider 5. Once joined, have the Android or Windows user hit the green Join button in the floating pop-up. They might also need to give FaceTime permission to use their microphone and camera. Tap "Join" to enter the call. William Antonelli/Insider 6. The Apple user will then need to accept their request to join. The Apple user will be notified when someone tries to join the call. William Antonelli/Insider 7. Once both parties have entered the call, they'll both see the same options to mute themselves, show or hide their camera, leave the call, and more. Read more Read less How to have FaceTime calls with Android users (Image credit: Future) "How do I have FaceTime calls with Android users?" is the new question that's popping up on the Google search engine as more iPhone owners catch wind of the new iOS 15 perk. At WWDC 2021, Apple announced that Android users can now participate in FaceTime calls, but there is a catch. Although Android users can join FaceTime calls, they cannot host any. Only an iPhone owner can launch a FaceTime call and send a link to an Android recipient (which allows the non-iOS user to join in on the FaceTime fun). Getting started is easy. Check out the step-by-step instructions below. Before launching a FaceTime call with an Android user, your iPhone must be updated to iOS 15. Also, make sure that your call participant is in your Contacts for easy sharing via the Messages app. Once you've done these preliminary actions, you're ready to have your first FaceTime call with an Android user. 1. Go to the FaceTime app. 2. If you're not signed in yet, you'll be prompted to do so. Input your Apple ID and password. How to have FaceTime calls with Android users (Image credit: Future) 3. Click on "Create a Link." If you like, you can name the FaceTime link by clicking on "Add Name" and typing in your preferred title. Tap "OK." How to have FaceTime calls with Android users (Image credit: Future) 4. Next, click on the tiny "i" next to your newly created link. How to have FaceTime calls with Android users (Image credit: Future) 5. Tap on "Share Link." How to have FaceTime calls with Android users (Image credit: Future) 6. Tap on "Messages" and click on the green plus sign to select the Contact you'd like to send the link to. Next, click on the green up arrow to send it. (Image credit: Future) 7. Once sent, you'll be brought back to your FaceTime link's main page. Click on "Join" and wait for your Android buddy to join the call. Of course, it's best to plan ahead and schedule a FaceTime call with your Android participant so that they can join you on the call at an agreed upon time. Today's best iPhone 13 deals FaceTime on a Windows computer. Apple's big iOS 15 update for iPhones lets you invite Windows and Android users into your FaceTime calls. It's the first time that's been possible. Previously, FaceTime calls were limited to people using iPhones, iPads and Macs. Now, when you start a FaceTime call from an iPhone, you can invite people using other gadgets, like a Windows computer or an Android phone. All you do is send them a link that they can open in a web browser to join the call. It means you and your family don't have to pick a different app if you have a mix of people using different software. You have to approve anyone who tries to join using that link, which helps prevent random people who get the link from joining your call. One note: someone still needs an Apple device, like an iPhone or an iPad, to start the call. But then anyone can join. Here's what to do: Install iOS 15 if you haven't already. Open FaceTime on your iPhone (or iPad). Tap the "Create Link" button on the top left. Choose how you want to send the link. You can send it via a text message, email or through any third-party messaging apps on your device, like Teams or Slack. Send it. You'll see the main FaceTime screen after you've sent the link to a friend. Now tap "FaceTime Link" on the left to start the call from your iPhone or iPad. Tap "Join." Now anyone who has the link can click it, enter their name and request to join the conversation. As the host, you'll now approve anyone who wants to join by tapping a green check mark button. That's it!
